Scent:

The scent of Middle Eastern perfumes is often described as rich, complex, and long-lasting. These perfumes typically contain a large amount of natural ingredients such as amber, musk, sandalwood, frankincense, rose, jasmine, and orange blossom, giving them a blend of woody, floral, sweet, and spicy notes. Middle Eastern perfumes are highly concentrated, with strong longevity on the skin, emitting a unique sense of depth and mystery. They are suitable for evening wear or special occasions.
