Applications:

Perfume essential oils are widely used in daily life and industrial production. They are not only used for personal care, but also involve space fragrance, household products, food processing and other fields.

Daily life and industrial production application of perfume essential oils:

1. Personal care and daily fragrance

Perfume essential oils are an important part of daily fragrance and personal care. They are often used in products such as perfume, body lotion, hair spray, etc., giving them a unique fragrance and enhancing the use experience. In addition, due to its high concentration of fragrance properties, essential oils are suitable for customized fragrances, providing a long-lasting and personalized olfactory experience.

2. Home space fragrance and air freshness

Perfume essential oils are widely used in home environments, especially in products such as scented candles, air fresheners, and room sprays. By using essential oils in home spaces, users can create a warm, relaxing or refreshing atmosphere. The variety of fragrance options of essential oils allow them to adjust the fragrance according to different rooms, seasons and moods, which is deeply loved by consumers.

3. Essential oils in the food and beverage industry

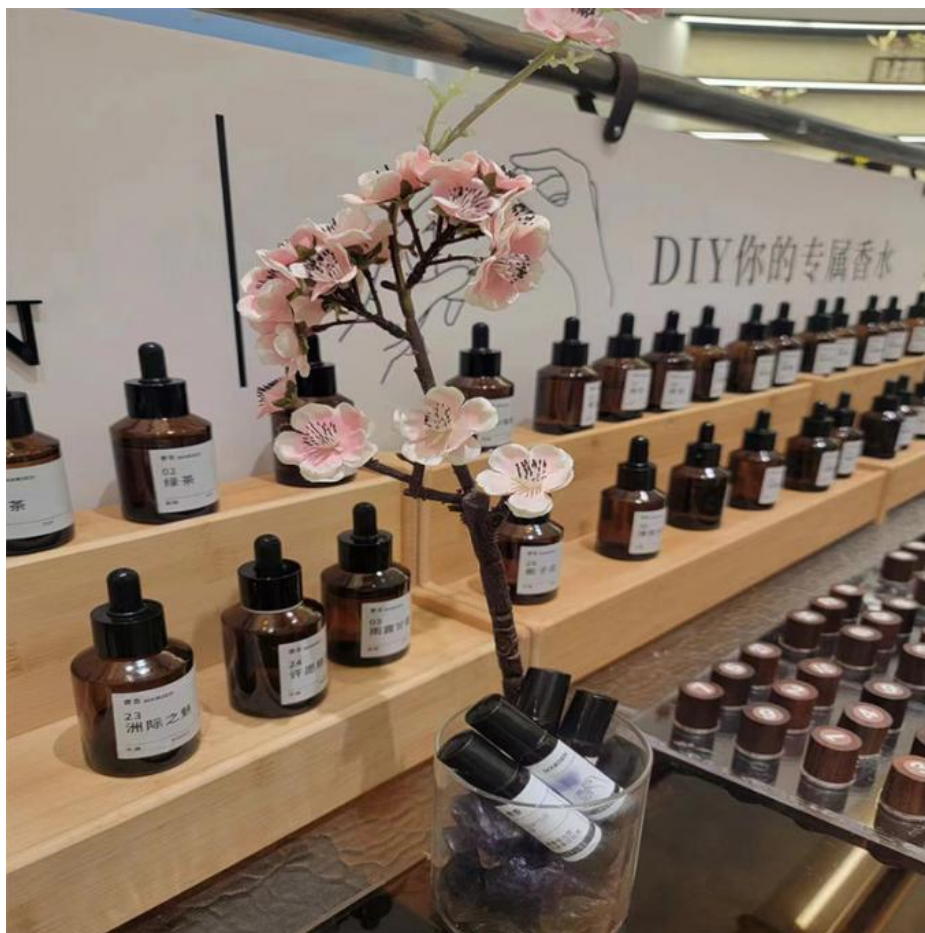

In the food and beverage industry, essential oils are used to enhance fragrance, flavor and blend to make products more attractive. For example, in candies, beverages, baked goods and other products, natural essential oils are used to add fruity, floral or vanilla flavors to cater to consumers' taste needs. In addition, the natural ingredients of essential oils meet the current consumer's pursuit of health.

4. Application in cleaning products and daily chemical products

Perfume essential oils are very common in daily chemical products such as detergents, laundry detergents, and hand soaps, adding pleasant fragrance to these products and enhancing user experience. For example, essential oils with fragrances such as lemon and lavender are often used in cleaning products, which can bring fresh and lasting fragrance and enhance the home cleaning experience.

5. Use of fragrance brand promotion and commercial activities

Perfume essential oils have become a common element in commercial activities, especially in brand promotion activities, hotel and shopping mall fragrance marketing, as an important means to enhance brand atmosphere. By blending the scent of specific essential oils, we can create a unique brand memory for customers, allowing consumers to have a deeper emotional connection with the brand.
