Product Description

Product Description:

Originating from Arabia and surrounding areas, Middle Eastern fragrances have a long history and are deeply influenced by local culture and food traditions. These fragrances tend to have strong, complex aromas that blend the unique scents of natural plants, spices, and fragrant woods. The characteristics of Middle Eastern fragrances usually include rich florals, spicy aromas, sweet aromas, and deep woody feelings, which can stimulate a rich sensory experience.

Main ingredients:

Floral ingredients: rose, jasmine, orange blossom and other flowers.

Spice ingredients: saffron, cardamom, cinnamon, cloves, fennel, vanilla, etc.

Woody aromas: sandalwood, cedar, oak, etc.

Aromatic plants: lavender, rosemary, vanilla, licorice, etc.

Animal fragrances: ambergris, musk (may be used in some traditional perfumes).

Features:

Aroma description: Middle Eastern woody fragrances usually include the essence of woods such as sandalwood, cedar, and oak, with a deep, lasting and soothing aroma. Woody fragrances are mostly used in high-end perfumes or in meditation and religious ceremonies.

Application:

Perfume: Woody fragrances are one of the indispensable base notes in Middle Eastern perfumes. Common aromas include sandalwood (warm and creamy) and cedar (fresh and dry).

Home fragrance: Woody fragrances are common in room fragrances and air fresheners to create a quiet and calm environment.

Cosmetics: In skin care products, woody fragrances can provide a gentle and deep sensory experience and are often used in soothing and relaxing formulas.
